

General

Peter Meijer Architect, PC, is currently seeking an Intern with 1-4 years of technical architectural experience to join our Portland office. PMA is an architectural firm melding building envelope science, preservation, and design.

Position Description

Full-time, flexible hours within PMA office policy. Individual must be on a professional path to career development in alignment with PMA practices. Career development may include professional architecture licensure but is not limited to just architecture. Project assignments vary from commercial, higher ed, to residential with all projects centered on existing buildings. Assignments will have limited independent decision making and limited independent responsibility. Tasks include carrying out assignments, techniques, and procedures under direction and guidance from others.

Requirements

First professional degree in architecture and 1-4 years of experience in the field or in a related area. Proficiency in Revit required.

Professional Development

Self-education: Intern Architect takes the initiative for their own professional development by demonstrating self-learning techniques like on the job learning, learning about PMA's practice, learning about building science, increasing their own proficiency in Revit and other software, learning about technical industry standards, asking questions of those around them.

Community involvement: PMA supports staff in their personal decisions to become involved with the community.
